Who: International Rescue Committee and Global Women’s Institute
Where: Duques Hall, Room 151
2201 G St. NW
Washington, DC 20052

The International Rescue Committee, with generous support from the NoVo Foundation and the U.S. State Department Bureau for Population, Refugees and Migration (PRM), has developed an evidenced-based and field-tested intervention, Preventing Violence against Women & Girls: Engaging Men through Accountable Practice (EMAP), which aims to prevent violence against women and girls, by addressing its root causes in conflict settings. EMAP is a one-year prevention intervention that offers an innovative model – a model of accountable practice for men in times of instability – to engage men in transformative individual behavior change, guided by the voices of women, specifically in conflict settings. GGP’s Bibliography Update

By Student Contributor: Lena Krikorian

In November and December, the Global Gender Program’s “Women, Peace, Security, and Development Bibliography” grew substantially, increasing by over 100 sources to nearly 2,250 sources. We continue to improve the quality of listing on the database by adding more relevant descriptors and identifying whether sources are open access (OA) or not open access (NOA.) Please learn about this new intervention and its efficacy in conflict-affected settings. The presentation will be followed by a panel discussion (moderated by GWI Director Mary Ellsberg) on the most recent research and programmatic lessons for effective strategies to engage men in violence prevention. Please RSVP to wpe@rescue.org.

Save the Date: The Second Annual Sheikha Fatima Lectureship
When: May 8
Who: United States Institute of Peace
Where: U.S. Institute of Peace
2301 Constitution Ave NW
Washington, DC

In recognition of women as peacebuilders, the United States Institute of Peace has established the Sheikha Fatima Lectureship series around Women at the Table, with the first annual lecture focusing on women as “Messengers” of Peacebuilding. Building lasting peace and security requires women’s participation. In order to create a sustainable peace, women have to be represented at the table. It was through the generosity of Her Highness Sheikha Fatima bint Mubarak Al Ketbi, the wife of the late Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahyan, founder and first president of the United Arab Emirates, that the Institute of

Inaugural Sheikha Fatima Lectureship: Messengers of Peacebuilding
On May 9th, 2013, the U.S. Institute of Peace held the Inaugural Sheikha Fatima Lectureship at its headquarters in Washington, DC. This event featured four distinguished women leaders – Noura Al Kaabi, CEO of Media Zone Authority-Abu Dhabi (twofour54); Abigail Disney, Filmmaker, Philanthropist, and Activist; Tara Sonenshine, Former Undersecretary for Public Diplomacy and Public Affairs, U.S. Department of State; and Margot Wallström, Former Special Representative to the UN Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict – who examined the critical importance and the impact of communicating stories of women and peacebuilding through media, public affairs, film, and philanthropy. This 4-minute video highlights the main takeaways from the event.

Special issue of Gender and Development on conflict and violence

Articles in the November issue of G&D focus on the complicated and context-specific relationship between gender inequality and violence and conflict, and debate ways to end gender-based violence (GBV) in its many pernicious forms. Formally ending conflict is not enough to end GBV. Long term, transformative change is necessary in order to advance women's rights in conflict and post-conflict contexts. The Global Gender Program is especially pleased to note that one of the articles is by GGP pre-doctoral fellow in political science, Kerry Crawford: From spoils to weapons: framing wartime sexual violence.
