Michele Manatt Endowed Fellowship 2014-2015

The Michele Manatt Endowed Fellowship is available for second year graduate students at the Elliott School of International Affairs, GW. In order to be considered for this fellowship, students must show a firm commitment to studying women's/girls' issues in developing countries. This can be demonstrated through focused coursework and research interests.

This award is worth a total of $2,000 for one academic year.

If you are interested in applying for the Michele Manatt Fellowship for the 2014-2015 academic year, please send a statement of interest (approximately 500 words) and resume to ggp@email.gwu.edu by July 1, 2014.

Note: To be considered for the Michele Manatt Fellowship, you must register for at least 6 credits each semester and remain in good academic standing. The fellowship is applied toward tuition and does not cover fees, summer coursework, or additional coursework beyond the 40 credits required for the degree. Any part of the tuition award that is not used within the academic year reverts to the Elliott School and cannot be converted to cash.
Celebrating Progress, Remaining Steadfast and Asking What’s Next for Girls’ Education

When: June 17 | 9:00am- 2:00pm
Who: Center for Universal Education at Brookings
Where: The Brookings Institution, Falk Auditorium
1775 Massachusetts Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20036

Over the past two decades there have been major improvements in girls’ education. In 1990, less than 50 percent of girls in low-income countries were enrolled in primary school; today that figure has climbed to nearly 80 percent. However, much work remains to be done. Thirty million girls still miss out on basic education, and the challenge for those that now attend school is that they learn while there. Indeed, 250 million children cannot read or write, even after many of them have spent four years in school. Furthermore, the attacks on girls’ schools in Nigeria and elsewhere highlights that school safety must also be a priority moving forward. Addressing these “second generation” issues will require a continued focus on providing girls with accessible, quality and safe education.

On June 17, the Center for Universal Education at Brookings will host a discussion on the way forward for girls’ education. U.S. Ambassador-at-Large for Global Women’s Issues Catherine M. Russell will deliver a keynote address, and two panels will explore successful approaches for improving girls’ education and profile leaders who have championed the value and importance of girls in some of the most difficult environments. Following each session, speakers will take questions from the audience. A networking lunch will be held after the event.

This event will be live webcast. Follow the discussion on Twitter with the hashtag #GirlsEdu.

2nd MenEngage Global Symposium 2014 Men and Boys for Gender Justice
When: November 10-13
Who: MenEngage and the Centre for Health and Social Justice
Where: India Habitat Centre
New Delhi, India

MenEngage, a global alliance of organizations working with men and boys for gender equality is organizing the 2nd MenEngage Global Symposium in Delhi in November 2014. The overall theme of the Symposium is ‘Men and Boys for Gender Justice’ and encompasses a holistic approach to understanding the implications of masculinities in different domains and disciplines of development and social justice related action in a globalizing world.

As the work with men and boys for gender equality matures, there is a realization that while men and boys are implicated in violence and discrimination against women and girls, many men and boys are themselves victims of violence and risks associated with narrow views of masculinity. The rapidly changing realities of the globalized economy is bringing new challenges in men lives which many are unable to cope with. ‘Masculinities‘ is emerging as an important lens to understand the influences and compulsions that men face. In a world confronted with the spectre of manifold violence, the opportunities for peace, justice, physical, mental and emotional well-being and mutually respectful co-existence are rapidly becoming compromised. It is men who wield power in the world, it is men who set standards for each other and it is their standards that have brought about the current state of affairs. If the situation has to improve towards an social order which allows everyone equal opportunity and space, it is necessary to interrogate and reform dominant masculinities.

The Symposium will bring together researchers and practitioners, advocates and activists, government representatives and the donor community to share experiences and evidence, reflections and insights, promote dialogue with those engaged with women’s rights work to seek directions on how men and boys can creatively contribute to gender equality, the new development paradigm beyond the MDG framework, and towards the broader vision of social justice.

The Making of Sexual Violence
How Does a Boy Grow Up to Commit Rape?
This International Center for Research on Women report presents an overview of the five study sites of the International Men and Gender Equality Survey (IMAGES), presents findings related to men's self-reported perpetration of sexual violence, investigates seven domains of possible influences on men's sexual violence perpetration and provides actionable lessons and recommendations.

Violence Against Women in Kentucky: A History of U.S. and State Legislative Reform
In this book, Carol E. Jordan chronicles the stories of those who have led the legislative fight for the last four decades to protect women from domestic violence, rape, stalking, and related crimes. It is the first book to look at the history of domestic violence and rape in a state that consistently falls at the bottom of women's rights rankings, as told by the activists and survivors who fought for change. Detailing the successes and failures of reforms and outlining the work that is still to be done, this volume reflects on the future of women’s rights legislation in Kentucky.
